

The fabulous history of Harry Sandwich!

On 6th april 1864, so in the 19th century, Sir Harry Sandwich invented the famous Sandwich. So, now, I am going to tell you this story.

In the 19th century in London the king was very hungry, so he called his cook. The cook said:

«Yes my king, what would you like?»

-I am very starving, prepare me some meal!

-yes your majesty and what would your majesty like?»

-I would like to eat tomatoes, bread, salad, cucumber, gherkins and ham.»

So the cook went to the kitchen and had a look. Unfortunately, he had lost the key of the cupboard where the plates of silver were locked. So he couldn't put the food in a plate. But he was a clever boy and suddenly he had an idea.

He took the loaf of bread on the table and cut it in two parts. Then, he put slices of tomatoes, cucumber, gherkins, ham and salad in the bread. He looked at the thing... It looked yummy. So he brought it to the king who did a funny face. Sandwich was scared and told the king the whole story!

The king tasted the sandwich and loved it immediately and he decided to name this new meal Sandwich like the name of his cook.

So here is the story of the sandwich.
